An Independent Not-for-Profit Newspaper
Serving Cape Elizabeth Since 1988

Happy Birthday to us!

By Marta Girouard

Many, if not most, residents know about The Cape Courier's beginnings. Founder Ellen Van Fleet felt there was a lack of a newspaper specific to the Cape Elizabeth community. She and a dedicated team, everyone volunteers at the start, worked together to produce the first issue on March 5, 1988. Wendy Derzawiec, who still writes for the paper and is its webmaster, was the first editor. Headquarters originally was an upstairs bedroom in Jan Soland's house, which resulted in the paper being incorporated as "Upstairs, Inc."

Putting a paper together back then was much more labor intensive than it is today. Without email, cell phones, or Internet, it was created painstakingly by hand. Articles had to be typed and photos were developed from film, printed, and then scanned. Once content was ready, layout involved manually positioning the articles onto a paste-up board. Today, content is created and shared with the click of a mouse.

Although technology has changed how the paper is produced, staff and volunteers have remained true and committed to the mission of The Cape Courier. That mission is to foster a sense of community by presenting news specific and unique to Cape Elizabeth or its residents; and, whenever possible, to promote volunteerism within the community. We've reached out to some of those involved with the paper to share meaningful or fun memories from their time at the paper.

Elizabeth Brogan: Former writer, community editor, editor, and board member

"I loved putting the letters page together and always appreciated those people willing to openly speak out on important issues. That page was really a continuing story about the town. I also loved looking at all the great photos from our volunteer photographers, especially the nature photos that Martha Agan would send me for every edition. It was hard to choose which photos to run on our limited pages, but probably also the most fun part of the job."

"Working at the Courier was a great way to connect to other people in town. I made some of my dearest friends through the Courier. I love newspapers and I always felt proud to be a part of this one."

Wendy Derzawiec: Former editor, writer since first issue and webmaster since 1997

"I enjoyed meeting and getting to know people who I still know today. I can say hi to people and think of how I first met them through the Courier somehow. Either they were typists or proofreaders, or I interviewed them for a story or something. There are a lot of very kind and generous people in this town.

"In the beginning we didn't have layout software, we had to type articles and headlines and bring them to Portland to be set in columns."

-Wendy Derzawiec

"In the beginning we didn't have layout software, we had to type articles and headlines and bring them to Portland to be set in columns. You couldn't tell exactly how the copy was going to fit; you had to count characters and guess. I had written an article on an ordinance requiring voice command of dogs in town, but I messed up the count on the headline and it didn't cover the whole article. So when I looked at it, instead of seeing 'Law stops short of full leash' all I could see was 'Hed stops short of full length.'

I also recall how one time I had thrown my back out and our publisher (and founder) Ellen Van Fleet dutifully sat next to my bed and drew the layouts as I (flat on my back) told her where to put things. It wasn't funny at the time, but now it's kind of funny."

Bob Dodd: Former editor, Current writer and board member

"Mary Takach, who worked with me as community editor, came up with a great idea for our Valentine's Day issue to encourage people to tell stories about how they and their spouse or partner met, to be called 'How We Met.' One day, Mary came into the office and asked if we had received any 'how we mets.' Puzzled by her question, I asked, 'Who is Howie Metz?' Thus the 'Howie Metz Stories for Valentine's Day' feature was born.

"After the tragic death of a Cape Elizabeth teen in a car accident, we encouraged various people in the community to contribute articles on teen drinking from their personal and professional perspectives: the police chief, a teacher, a parent, a fellow student. The series, which ran over several issues, won Day One's Community Leadership award."

Diane Brakeley: Former paste-up volunteer, proof-reader, writer, formatter, ad manager, publisher

"My favorite part of working on the paper was the people. Going in on proofing day was fun - being with a group of smart women (and occasionally a man), talking about the stories, and the finer points of grammar and punctuation. Everyone wanted the paper to be the best it could be."

"Still my best memory of the paper happened before it even was a newspaper. I had the great fortune of moving in across the street from Ellen Van Fleet when we first moved here 31 years ago. We had kids about the same ages and became fast friends. I'll never forget the day Ellen told me she wanted to start a community newspaper. My father had worked for a daily newspaper and that's what I envisioned - deafening printing presses with lots of black ink. I remember saying, 'That's nice' and all the while thinking, 'Are you nuts?' Ellen is the only person I know who could have pulled it off!"

Debbie Butterworth: Former board member, writer since first issue

"I've had the opportunity to interview some really interesting people. Kenyan runners who won the Beach to Beacon, a lady who had a vast collection of lighthouses, Cub Scouts who participated in the Pinewood Derby, and resident Henry Adams, who was spotlighted as a 'typical Mainer' for a nationally televised Superbowl ad. And then there was the story

"It's hard to remember a time when we didn't have the Courier..."

-Debbie Butterworth

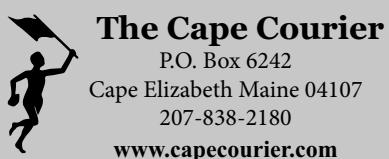

about Dan Brown, an EMT from our ambulance crew, who happened to be at a circus event in Portland when a man suffered a heart attack. Dan performed CPR until the ambulance arrived. The surprising aspect was that the man was a performer and dressed as a clown, complete with floppy shoes and big red nose!

"It's hard to remember a time when we didn't have the Courier to share not only information about events in our little town, but also to provide a sense of community, a common bond that connects everyone and reminds us every couple of weeks that we're all connected in some way as we read articles about what seniors are doing, local

Residents write message on Crescent Beach

Friends and neighbors gathered at Crescent Beach on Sunday, Feb. 5, before low tide and scraped RESIST! in the sand. The 20' tall letters are under the flight path to the Jetport. We were inspired by Gary Allen's Resist protest on Sand Beach at Acadia.

It felt good to work together, to claim our resistance. We all have concerns. For me, it's this: Our government has been run by big business for decades, and it's hit a point of critical mass. The oil industry, big banks and billionaires bought themselves cabinet seats. The current administration is gutting the EPA, removing key provisions from the Affordable Care Act, damaging our international relationships, removing Wall Street regulations and much more. Trump's 17 cabinet picks have a higher net worth than 1/3 of Americans combined! They don't care about what we need, or what is good for our families.

We the people are waking up. We will fight for our country. The resistance has begun.

Kate Wolf

Thank you, Pom's Thai Taste

Monday night, Feb. 6, we went out to supper, feeling badly and not wanting to cook.

Fine dinner, delicious, but we walked out leaving a purse on the floor next to our table, not noticing our oversight.

The next morning: Gone! Serious panic set in. Realizing my mistake, I drove over to the restaurant, to find a very kind gentleman, who had carefully put the purse to one side until I returned to claim it.

He could not have been nicer. THANK YOU Pom's Thai Taste, on Cottage Road.

We are very lucky, to have such fine businesses serving our small town.

This great establishment has been here many years now, and we are twice blessed:

Delicious Thai food and wonderful neighbors! THANK YOU!

Then and Now: Winter at the corner of Ocean House Road and Spurwink Avenue

By Marta Girouard

Although snow comes with the territory when you live in New England, it's safe to say that the recent round of snowstorms has many yearning for spring. At least we are fortunate to get through winter with modern day inventions like car heating, and snowplows quickly clearing the snow off roads. This was not the case a hundred years ago. The photo on the left, taken sometime around the turn of the last century, is the corner of Ocean House Road at Spurwink Avenue looking toward today's town center (same intersection today on right). Getting around town often meant walking, and snowshoes definitely came in handy. At that time, the town organized teams of men to go around on horse drawn sleighs with wooden runners, digging out various areas after a snowstorm. Horse drawn rollers also were used. These were like a flat barrel on its side that was filled with water, which froze, therefore making it heavy. Instead of pushing the snow away as is done today with snowplows, snow was flattened with the roller.

CEHPS presents Cape Elizabeth: The Postcard View

The Cape Elizabeth Historical Preservation Society presents Cape Elizabeth: The Postcard View, with Kevin Johnson on Monday, March 6, 7 p.m. in the Community Center, 345 Ocean House Road.

Johnson is a photo archivist for the Penobscot Marine Museum in Searsport. He will present postcard selections from the Eastern Illustrating & Publishing Co. The slide show and talk will highlight historical views of Cape Elizabeth and

My Cape Elizabeth: Rob Knott, Superintendent at Purpoodock Club

By Marta Girouard

We may still be in the throes of winter, but Rob Knott, golf course superintendent at Purpoodock Club, is focusing on the warmer days ahead. He and his staff spend all winter preparing for the on-season. This includes mitigating shade conditions, managing tree growth, maintaining ice accumulation, and getting equipment ready. "Adaptability is the key to this job," said Knott. "You go into work on a daily basis with plans A, B, and C, but the elements have other intentions and you go with plans X, Y, and Z."

Knott developed a love for the game at a young age. "My grandmother was sick with cancer and going to play a round of golf with my grandfather was a way to take our mind off things," said Knott. In high school, he saw an ad in the paper for a job at Prouts Neck Golf Course, and worked there for six seasons while going to USM to study psychology and criminology. He played golf for USM, and when done with school, decided he wanted to pursue golf maintenance as a career.

Knott chose North Carolina State University, highly regarded for its degree in turf grass management. While in school and working his way up the ranks at various courses, he met his wife Joy through a mutual friend. They eloped and honeymooned in Europe, and after living in Raleigh for a few years, made their way back up the East Coast, where Knott worked as Senior Assistant Superintendent at a course in Rhode Island. He has been superintendent at Purpoodock since 2014.

The course usually opens sometime in April. Knott knows about a week or so ahead of time and then watches the weather, which can delay opening. "The springs here are usually much colder due to the ocean," Knott said. "I mostly look for the course to be dry enough as the soil is very soft and the turf is vulnerable to damage coming out of winter with no real chance to repair itself that early."

Knott's crew grows from about 4 in the off-season to around 16 in the on-season. During golf season, the team's days are spent mowing, setting up the golf course, and moving holes and tees, all discreetly managed while the grounds are in use. Another important part of keeping the course in shape is aerification, which is the process of creating air space in the soil to promote a healthy rooting system for the turf.

"My 'office' everyday is outdoors and I love it. I come into work early and enjoy walking around Purpoodock as the day is beginning," said Knott. A love of the outdoors is something he finds equally important outside of work. With all the natural beauty that Cape Elizabeth has to offer, Knott and his wife and their three children, Francheska (5), Julian (3) and Phineas (1) make sure to enjoy a little bit of it each day.

Local writers to read

On Saturday, Feb. 25, 2017 from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m., Local Writers at The Local Buzz continues its monthly reading series featuring Maine writers reading original fiction, nonfiction and poetry. The Local Buzz café and wine bar will host two Portland area writers: author Shonna Milliken Humphrey, and poet Duff Plunkett. Located at 327 Ocean House Road in Cape Elizabeth, The Local Buzz events are co-hosted by poets Marcia F. Brown and Linda Aldrich.

Shonna Milliken Humphrey is a Maine writer who also teaches, advises groups how to improve systems, and offers development consultation. Her first novel, Show Me Good Land was a semi-finalist for the 2012 VCU Cabell Award, and her essays have appeared in The Atlantic, The New York Times, Salon, Down East, and Maine magazines. For two years, Shonna contributed to The Maine Sunday Telegram as a food writer. She holds an MFA from Bennington College and provides writing, editing, marketing, development, coaching, and grant writing services to individuals and organizations. Her latest book, Dirt Roads and Diner Pie is a memoir that chronicles a month-long road trip through the southern United States with her husband as they deal with the repercussions of the child sex abuse he saw, heard, feared, and experienced while a student at New Jersey's American Boychoir School.

Duff Plunkett is a poet with long connections to the New England region of the U.S., he has traveled widely for schooling, leisure, work and just plain edification. His books of poetry are MUSEUM: Poetry about Art and Artists (2016); Left Brain-Right Brain (2007); The Butter Poems (1996); and Strike Back Cover (1986). He has written poems in the French, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish, and Turkish languages. In his most recent book, MUSEUM, about two-thirds of the poems were written in front of artwork in different museums around the world, in imitation of Impressionist technique. Some of the poems are "calligrams" or "picture poems."

The event is free and open to the public. Audience members may enjoy The Local Buzz menu of teas and coffees, wine or cocktails and locally-sourced food during the readings. More information at: www.localbuzzcafe.com

Upgraded security system gets national recognition

By Marta Girouard

Ed Hunt, Clerk at the Cape Elizabeth Police Department, using the card reader system

Cape Elizabeth was recently featured in an in-depth article on a security and safety news website about the town's upgraded security access control system. "It was nice to be recognized on a national level," said Greg Marles, Director of Facilities and Transportation in town.

Marles's main responsibilities include managing all of the facilities and transportation for the town and schools, field use, and building leases in Cape Elizabeth. When he joined the facilities department almost seven years ago, his position did not exist. The access control database was prone to issues and outdated. A couple years ago a system update added more door systems and cameras to the existing structure, but it was still difficult to use. It required extensive management of cards, keys, and doors, and the surveillance system posed problems with reliability and playback.

"We are aware of today's increasing security needs for the schools and town facilities," Marles said. Working with Advance Technology Inc. (ATI) of Scarborough, Maine, the multi-phase project was started by upgrading access control at the three schools in town. Over the course of a year, the Fire Department, Police Station, Public Works, and Town Hall also were added to the access control database. All of these buildings now operate on a single, integrated access control system using card readers for entry, and there are now 90 cameras in the community, which stream video back to the main server. Marles and the police chief have remote access to them and the recorded video feeds.

There were a number of other enhancements as part of the installation to further reinforce security and safety needs. For example, when a fire alarm went off, all access control cardholders were able to walk back into the building. One of ATI's engineers provided a solution by integrating the access control system with the fire alarm system so that only specific cards could enter the building after a fire alarm until authorized individuals reset the system. Another enhancement was integrating cameras and intercoms at each entrance in all the schools. The cameras feed video back to five different locations so that multiple users can respond to intercom activity. All visitors are verified with video and audio conversation before being granted entry.

Future goals include expanding the system to cover more access points and to eventually eliminate the need for keys throughout the schools and town buildings. According to Marles, there will always be some sort level of upgrades in the future as technology and security needs increase. "It will be easier to do that with everyone on the same 'backbone,'" Marles said.

The students at Cape Elizabeth Middle School are rehearsing to perform Roald Dahl's Wonka Jr.. Please join this cast and crew of 90 plus students as they present the timeless story of the world-famous candy man and his quest to find an heir to his chocolate fortune. Show times are Friday, March 10, at 7 pm, Saturday, March 11, at 2 pm and 7 pm and Sunday, March 12, at 2 pm. Tickets are $5 for students and $10 for adults.

STEAM festival looking for support, volunteers

On Friday, June 2, Cape Elizabeth Middle School will be filled with over 50 hands-on learning activities centered around Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Mathematics (STEAM) led by teachers, business leaders, community outreach educators and volunteers.

This event is for the entire CEMS student body for the entire school day. Students are fortunate to live in an area surrounded by scientific research and advancement, as well as a highly educated community.

The festival's primary goal is simple: to inspire. The committee hopes students will be engaged, excited by the exhibits, and leave the experience with a last impression on the importance of being curious.

Innovation continues to be a key component to progress, and the hope is to inspire middle school students in preparation for future jobs that may not yet exist by showcasing the joy of engaging in STEAM activities.

The goal is to have students experience the process of asking hard, curiosity-seeking questions, as well as the drive and thrill of chasing down answers to those questions.

Student will also be encouraged to discover the use of STEAM in everyday life, including music, dance and sports. In other words, to be inspired by STEAM next time they are on the field and thinking about the probability of winning the game.

The public is asked to support the mission sparking curiosity, building a community event and inspiring the next generation of scientists, technologists, engineers, artists and mathematicians.

The effort is just shy of a few thousand dollars of reaching our budget goal. Please consider sponsoring the event or making a tax-deductible donation. Every dollar helps as they prepare to buy material/supplies for the stations.

Also sought are those with a STEAM background to come teach for the day. This includes local college students who want to give back to their childhood alma mater or a retiree, a hobbyist or a tinkerer. A station will be created based on the volunteer's interest or a volunteer can help run an existing station.

The Difference Mercy Makes...

Mercy Breast Care Specialists of Maine

EMHS MEMBER

Suzanne A. Hoekstra, MD, FACS

Diane K. Stoller, MD, FACS

At Mercy Breast Care Specialists of Maine, breast care is all we do. We have two full-time female surgeons, the only such team in southern Maine.

Your breast health is important to you. Luckily, you don't have to wait weeks for high quality diagnosis and treatment. You can get mammography or other tests when it works for you, and get your results fast. Quality? We're so intent on quality that our biopsies are reviewed by two pathologists.

And here you get more than the treatment you need. You get the patient-centered Mercy experience, in a place that is all about you and your care.

That's the difference Mercy makes.

Drawing by Pond Cove Elementary School student chosen for display at Portland Museum of Art

Pond Cove Elementary School third grade student Ella Reeve's color pencil drawing (Crazy Hair) has been chosen to be exhibited at the Portland Museum of Art for Youth Art Month.

In celebration of National Youth Art Month during the month of March, the Portland Museum of Art (PMA), in collaboration with the Maine Art Education Association, has organized an exhibition of artwork created by Maine art students.

The PMA's exhibition is on view from March 1st through April 2nd. The exhibit will showcase more than 100 works of art by students throughout the state, from elementary school through high school.

All participating students will receive certificates of recognition. An exhibition celebration will be held at the PMA on Saturday, March 11, from 4 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. All are welcome.

IGA seeks Sunday-liquor vote
*By Wendy Berzawiec
Pond Cove IGA grocery store has enough signatures to authorize a town vote whether it may sell liquor beginning at noon on Sundays.*

The town Board of Registration has verified 705 signatures, enough to put the question on the March 5 ballot, said Town Clerk Debbie Pizzo.

"If it does pass, (Sunday liquor sales) will greatly help this store," said IGA owner Peter Conforti.

A public hearing on the issue will be held before the town council April 11. At that time the council will consider a letter from Conforti asking the liquor-sale question be put on the ballot.

The public will have an opportunity to speak before the council makes a decision.

The store has been gathering signatures since the beginning of February, Conforti said. The total exceeds the 650 signatures, or 15 percent of registered voters in the town, required to put the question on the ballot.

The IGA has been a state agency liquor store since the end of October. On Sundays, however, the liquor display is covered with a white partition to keep customers from bringing liquor into the store.

The state's attitude is that if the store is small enough to be open on Sundays, it may sell liquor on Sundays, provided it has the townspole's

Pizzeria wants in at plaza
At the Pond Cove Shopping Center, ice cream is out, pizza may be in. Georgios and Gregorios Makris plan to open a Cape Elizabeth House of Pizza in the space left empty by Farfar's Danish Ice Cream Shop.

The ice-cream store and convenience has been closed since February. Farfar's owner, John Farfaras, would not comment on the store's closing, noting the partnership between Farfar's and the Town Council tabled a request for a full-time malt license to sell beer at the House of Pizza, until the Zoning Board approves a change-of-use permit for the restaurant.

Before the hearing, Makris said he did not know whether a deferral or denial of the malt license would affect his decision to open in Cape Elizabeth.

"I can't say it's not going to affect it," he said.

The Cape Courier staff did not contact the Makris brothers about their plans to open a pizza shop in the shopping center since the beginning of the year. Pond Cove Hardware cleared

Thomas Memorial Library offering children's music, talk on 'fake news,' loons and more

Library offers February vacation programs for kids

When school is not in session, the new TML After School Hangout will not take place, although the popular Creativity Lab for elementary and middle school students will still take place on Wednesday, Feb. 22 from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. No registration is necessary.

The library is also offering a special workshop for kids in grades 5 and up on creating "Curiosity Cabinets," wooden boxes used to display and classify found objects from nature, such as stones, feathers, animal bones, and other curiosities. The library will provide a variety of wooden cigar boxes (generously donated by Old Port Spirits & Cigars in Portland, and Cafe Calabash in South Portland) for kids to use for creating their curiosity cabinets. Participants are encouraged to bring in collections of items they have found to get started. The program will take place on Thursday, Feb. 23 at 2:30 p.m., and requires advance registration on the library's website.

Library family favorite, Rob Duquette, to perform

Children's musician Rob Duquette will return to the library on Friday, Feb. 24 at 10:30 a.m. for a family concert. Rob has lots of young fans at the library from his monthly world music concerts in the past. He will sing new songs and old favorites for kids and families. All are welcome!

Chet Lunner to speak about "Fake News"

Cape resident and seasoned journalist Chet Lunner will discuss the state of journalism today and how to sort through the myriad of information sources to find the truth. He will speak from his own perspective and experiences, and then engage with participants in a discussion. Lunner is a former reporter, newspaper editor and correspondent who was the founding president of the Society of Professional Journalists, Maine Chapter. He is also a retired senior intelligence executive with the Department of Homeland Security. The talk will take place on Thursday, Feb. 23 at 6:30 p.m.

Series of screenings of Lincoln Center performances begins with Romeo & Juliet

The library has begun a new partnership with Lincoln Center Local, an initiative to bring exclusive free screenings of Lincoln Center's finest performances directly audiences in local communities. The library plans to offer these screenings on a monthly basis. The first event will be the "Lincoln Center at the Movies: Great American Dance" screening of "San Francisco Ballet: Romeo and Juliet," recorded at the War Memorial Opera House in San Francisco on May 7, 2015. With its passionate choreography, spine-tingling swordsmanship, and celebrated score by Sergei Prokofiev, this colorful and emotional retelling of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet has packed houses around the world. Helgi Tomasson's bravura interpretation of the Bard's greatest tragedy "lifts Shakespeare's complex and familiar language off the gilded pages and translates it into lucid classical choreography that is visceral, fresh, and ultimately sublime." (Huffington Post) The screening will take place in the library's Community Room on Saturday, February 25 from 2:00 - 4:00 p.m. Refreshments will be available. All are welcome!

Learn about loons

In the March entry in the library's Maine Wildlife Lecture Series, Cape resident and wildlife research biologist Carrie Gray will discuss Maine's distinctive water bird, the loon. As a research specialist in the Center for Loon Conservation at the Biodiversity Research Institute, Carrie she has focused on capture and satellite deployment efforts of Red-throated Loons along the Mid-Atlantic Coast, and monitoring the mercury levels of breeding Common Loons in the Northeast and Canadian Maritime provinces. The talk will take place in the library's Community Room on Thursday, March 2 at 6:30 p.m.

Special Baby Doll Story Time to be filmed

Children's librarian Rachel Davis will be doing a presentation at a conference on the library's innovative Baby Doll Story Time program. As part of the presentation, she plans to show a short documentary film about the program. CEHS senior Kyle Long will be working on the documentary film as part of a library internship. Families with children ages 2 to 5 who would like to participate in the documentary can register for the special session of Baby Doll Story Time, which will take place on Saturday, March 4 at 10:30 a.m. For complete details and registration information, please visit the library's website.

Film, "To Light a Candle," to be shown

Last month, Humanitarian Parivash Rohani, presented a talk on "Glimpses of Iran." In March, she returns to facilitate a free screening of the film, "To Light a Candle" (2014,) the story of the triumph of knowledge over intolerance. The Baha'i are Iran's largest religious minority. They are persecuted because of their faith, and barred from teaching and studying at university. But Baha'i do teach, and do study. The Baha'i Institute for Higher Education (BIHE) was established in 1987 to give young Baha'i a chance to pursue knowledge and receive a quality education. The informal courses take place in people's homes, via mail correspondence, and with online lectures. The Iranian government regularly raids BIHE classes and arrests its students and teachers. Hundreds of Baha'i have been jailed sim-

The Cape Elizabeth Garden Club is sponsoring a talk on Tuesday, March 7 at 7:00 p.m. on "Enjoying House Plants." The presenter is Mary Mixer from Skillins Greenhouses in Falmouth. Mary will identify houseplant problems if the plant is brought to the event in a sealed plastic bag. All are welcome!

Volunteers still welcome to register for the summit project hike

There is no greater gift that can be bestowed upon the family of a Fallen Hero than to ensure that their loved one is not forgotten. Before the Honor Case from the Summit Project moves on to its next destination, the library is organizing a tribute hike to Fort Williams Park to take place on Saturday, March 11 at 1 p.m.

Volunteers are encouraged to participate on the library's website. Participants will honor the memory of fallen soldiers by carrying the stones engraved with their names. Those wishing to participate should register in advance on the library's website.

Homestay program comes under fire

By Susan Busby
The Homestay Program was a topic of great interest at the first school board meeting of the new year. Although the seventh grade policy is not mandatory at this time, Conwell reported that teachers think it should be. Each year a grade will be added until the program is fully implemented in grades 4 - 12. The significant cost of this program was mentioned.

Superintendent Dr. Daryl Pelletier sees diversify this program to include many different nationality students as well.

Many questions were asked about the program, but the central concern was pose of the program. Is it part of the language program giving our students opportunity to live with a host another country, or a program to our students and community to us?

Concerns included insurance for students, lack of adequate payment from host families, relative supervision by Juan Hernandez, and what the appropriate students to host per percent of the school now.

We are writing in response to the concern which a number of (Cape Elizabeth residents) have expressed upon learning from reports in the Portland Press Herald and Evening Express of the stay of the members of the Grateful Dead band at the Inn By The Sea.

As those who called us learned, the Inn By The Sea is fully prepared to and frequently lodges "celebrity" guests. The Inn is chosen by these individuals because they seek and cherish the privacy, anonymity, and security which our location provides. Unfortunately, because the Grateful Dead's planned stay found its way to the Portland newspapers, their privacy was potentially threatened, and many residents were understandably concerned about the potential consequences to the community of what the newspapers led you to believe would be an onslaught of fans.

As a result of this publicity, additional security precautions were taken to protect the community, The Grateful Dead, and our other Inn guests. With the able assistance of Cape Elizabeth's chief of police, David Pickering, and members of his department, the Grateful Dead's stay at The Inn By The Sea passed without any incident or disruption.

We wish to publicly thank Chief Pickering and the Cape Elizabeth police force and assure the residents of Cape Elizabeth that we will continue to act as responsible members of this community, as well as run the Inn By The Sea for the comfort and convenience of all of our guests.

Sincerely,

Jon Helmke, III

General Manager

From the Aug. 20, 1988 issue, the letter from Joe Helmke, General Manager at The Inn by the Sea, reads in part, "Unfortunately, because the Grateful Dead's planned stay found its way to the Portland newspapers, their privacy was potentially threatened . . . As a result of this publicity, additional security precautions were taken to protect the community, the Grateful Dead, and our other Inn guests. With the able assistance of Cape Elizabeth's chief of police, David Pickering, and members of his department, the Grateful Dead's stay at The Inn By The Sea passed without any incident or disruption."

Lloyd joins Sotheby's

Cape Elizabeth resident Sheilah Lloyd has joined the Portland Office of Legacy Sotheby's International Realty as an Assistant Vice President. Lloyd is a graduate of Cape Elizabeth High School and Phillips Exeter Academy, Vanderbilt University (B.S.), and the University of New Hampshire (M.S.). Prior to entering the real estate profession, Sheilah was a Speech Pathology practitioner for more than a decade.

In her free time, Sheilah enjoys spending quality family time with her two children. She loves the active outdoor lifestyle Maine offers. You will find her walking her very energetic dog around town, jogging on the town trails and roads, or on the ski slopes when time permits.

Sheilah Lloyd is new assistant vice president at Sotheby's.
